

We would like to voice our concern over the proposal for a new Low Power FM (LPFM) broadcast service. We are regular listeners and financial supporters of the K-LOVE Christian radio network and this action would likely overpower their signals and force many of their stations off the air that our family listens to in the Sacramento area and throughout California as we travel.

K-LOVE's family-friendly format is one of the few remaining safe places my children can go for music and entertainment. We can rest assured that they will never hear objectionable material on their network. That can't be said about any other radio or television network in our area.

K-LOVE is an amazing outreach to those who are hurting in our community. Thru radio, they can reach children in abusive homes, single Moms trying to provide a life for their children, and people caught up in drug abuse or worse situations. They have pastors on staff 24-7 who can talk with anyone in need and who have even saved people from committing suicide. If K-LOVE were forced off the air, our communities would be losing an irreplaceable resource.

As parents of three (ages 9-12), we are very concerned about the content of the messages my children receive from radio and television. In the last few years especially, the messages have become noticeably worse. I'm sure you've already received lots of feedback regarding the Superbowl show...yes, all three of my kids were watching. We will be seriously re-thinking that one in the future.

As you can guess, K-LOVE is one of the few remaining places we have to go to get family-friendly entertainment. Please don't let local Low Power FM signals overpower this amazing ministry. Please allow K-LOVE to continue broadcasting its positive encouraging message throughout the areas they are now reaching. We have quite enough negative things in this world to keep us worried and afraid, please leave this light turned on for those of us who need it!

Thank you
